

This year, we wanted to give you something special — something you can't buy in a store or order online. Something that truly expresses how much we love and appreciate you.

We hope you enjoy contents of this package, but they're more of a preview . . . the real gift isn't really something you can wrap.

Recently, we hired a professional writing service to help us document your personal history. They're going to help us preserve all of the stories you've shared with us over the years — and maybe help unearth a few new ones, too.

We want to capture the memories that are most meaningful to you — funny stories, sad moments, experiences that shaped you into the person you are today. And we also want to capture the little things; the things that are so easy to forget over time, like how you learned to drive, what music you liked when you were a teenager, and what you wore to school. We want to get everything in writing and create something that we can share with future generations for years to come.

Your writer is very excited about meeting you, and they are looking forward to getting started.

Love,
